EARLY VALLEY DAYS

MRS. ELLA RICHARDSON TELLS OF CONDITIONS ON EULIA RANCH IN 1871

Speaking of life in the Valley in the early days before the Thursday Morning Club, of Tropico, Mrs. Ella Richardson, wife of the pioneer E. W. Richardson, who along with his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Richardson, bought the ranch on which Tropico now stands, in 1868, said: The son came out by way of Cape Horn, reaching San Francisco September 11, 1871. He came to Los Angeles and resided at the La Fayette hotel, now the St. Elmo, which is close to the present general postoffice.

Mr. Richardson's first trip to the Valley was made on horseback. He was a surveyor and soon located his ranch and then spent the day riding through the brush of the valley. All the way up through what are now Glendale, Burbank and Tropico, he met not a single person. He started for Chicago a month later, reached Salt Lake and there heard of the great Chicago fire. His brother, O. S. Richardson, had large coal yards in Chicago. They burned for a month after the fire was over.

In 1873 Mr. E. W. Richardson returned to California and went into the sheep business, using the whole of his big ranch for grazing purposes. It was difficult then to keep possession of one's personal property. The whole place was infested with wild animals. The coyotes at lambing time were specially vicious and destructive. Wild cats would also prowl around and the gophers were so numerous that it was almost impossible to grow any vegetables which they would not get at. The wild cats would sometimes kill the dogs.

Mr. Richardson's father and mother occupied their own house which was built where the Atwater tract now stands. In a diary kept by W. C. B. Richardson, he tells how he borrowed E. W. Richardson's team and drove to Pasadena and got Sarah and the trunks and provisions and began housekeeping. At that time there was not a tree, lawn or walk in the place. Mrs. Richardson, my husband's mother, had lived in the city where she had many friends and in the new California ranch she could not see a friendly light, except when the headlight of the S. P. train shone up the valley.

From the diary of W. C. B. Richardson, May 18, 1888, it is learned that on that date he received the first letter by the first mail to Tropico and sent a letter out by the first mail to a friend in the East. The elder Richardson kept this diary from the year 1850 and made some kind of entry every day. The volumes of this diary are now on file. His wife also kept a diary in which many interesting events and incidents in her life are noted. Their son, E. W. Richardson, also kept a diary.

The elder Richardsons led a most beautiful life in love and contentment. In a letter to his son, W. C. B. Richardson says: "Your mother was a superior woman. We lived together about 57 years in harmony and contentment. You may thank her mostly for your own accumulations. The poor traveler and others never went from our door without refreshment and assistance of some kind. She was always strictly honest and virtuous in every way and never had a quarrel with any of her neighbors."

A letter dated April 14, 1887, shows that the Southern Pacific railway suggested that what is now Tropico should be called "Eulalia." An old ad, May 28, 1881, shows that Mr. W. C. B. Richardson offered 500 acres of valley land at $40 an acre.

In the Glendale Encinal, a newspaper published in 1887, on the date October 20, we find Mr. W. C. B. Richardson offering Richardson's allotment, Tropico Station, one and one-half miles north of Los Angeles city limits, for one-third cash, balances six and twelve months, at 8 per cent; also 106 acres, very desirable for allotment, at $500 per acre.

An old document dated March 11, 1872, shows that W. C. B. Richardson deeded to the Southern Pacific railway, for the consideration of $189, a strip of land on both sides of their located line, a distance of 5500 feet, and containing area of 12 6-10 acres.

This talk on old days was listened to with much interest.

STATE FISH HATCHERIES

Almost everybody is interested in fishing. The schoolboy dreams of it and though he may grow up without ever experiencing the wild joy of landing a trout, he will continue to the end of his life, to dream of its pleasures, like the old French peasant who always dreamed of going to Carcassonne, but never attained his wish. This is an inheritance from the old natural life that man used to live in the days of his savagery, as it is called.

Every summer sees the resident of the city packing up his rods, flies, reels and other fishing accessories and heading him away to some such region as that of Big Bear lake or the canyons of Inyo county or the Yosemite to lure the wary trout with his devices. There is health in the sport and above all a calm and restful peace that are certain panaceas for jaded nerves and tired eyes.

At one time the once abundant supplies of trout which filled the rivers of California in the days of Kit Carson were destroyed and it became the work of the State hatcheries to fill them up once more. This has been accomplished in a comparatively short time and careful preservation of the supply by close seasons has once more made the rivers and lakes of California a paradise for the angler.

At the Ukiah hatchery the fish are all planted by July 31. Steelhead trout to the number of 445,000 were distributed in the streams of Mendocino, Sonoma and Lake counties. The distribution of fry from Seward Hatchery, Humboldt county, was completed August 20. The hatcheries are placed where they can secure a plentiful supply of cool, pure water, during the warmest days. Under these conditions the fish hatched are unusually vigorous.

This work goes on all over the State. From the Seward hatchery 1,153,000 fry were distributed this season along the line of the Northwestern Pacific railroad from the hatchery. That station is also planning to hatch salmon fry. There is an egg-collecting station at Lake Almanor dam and one at Domino springs, where rainbow trout eggs are collected, from Rice creek, a tributary to the North Fork of the Feather river.

More than 200,000 rainbow trout were distributed in the waters tributary to the North Fork of the Feather River in Lassen and Plumas counties. One million two hundred and eighty-five eggs of rainbow trout were collected and shipped to other stations to be distributed throughout other parts of the state.

There is a good hatchery in Bear Valley. From this hatchery with many difficulties which were overcome 750,000 fry were hatched and distributed in good condition in the waters of San Bernardino county. From the Sisson station 9,500,000 fine, large fry will have been planted all over the state by the time that station finishes its work this year.

There is also a hatchery at Brookdale, from which 875,000 fry were distributed throughout Santa Clara, Santa Cruz and Monterey counties. Tallac hatchery was closed August 1. The fry from this station were planted early. Tahoe hatchery goes on with its work every year till the middle of October. It sent out 3,000,000 trout this season into the lakes and streams of the Tahoe district.

It can be understood that the eager fisherman of the city will have a fine sport waiting him when summer returns and rod and reel again exercise their fascination.

AMERICANS FIGHTING FOR FRANCE

In every war the world has known there has always been a foreign legion. There are in every age men who cannot be kept away from any scene of fighting. The foreign legions of past wars have always distinguished themselves because they have been composed of men who love fighting for fighting's sake or who take up some such cause as that of France just now because they believe the country was wrongfully invaded.

No fewer than eight hundred Americans are in the Foreign Legion that is fighting in France at the present moment. Originally there were 100 American volunteers, who sailed on the Rochambeau, from New York, August 4, 1914, immediately after the declaration of war. Of these only four remain. One is a lieutenant from Seattle, who is undergoing special treatment at Paris for a bullet through the lungs; another is a sergeant from New Orleans; one is a private from San Francisco, and another a private from New York.

This fighting foreign legion suffered very heavily during the French offensive in Champagne, September, 1915. The legion distinguished itself by its valorous conduct, but lost a great many killed and wounded. The Americans in the regiment have been frequently decorated for their valor. Fifty of them have now joined the Franco-American flying corps. A number have secured their discharge and still more have obtained permission to join the French regiments of the line.

It is not difficult to keep the numbers of the legion up to full strength. Americans are constantly joining, while men of every nationality under the sun are to be found there. There are representatives of forty-eight different nationalities in the Legion. Some of them have been released to return home to fight in the armies of their own countries. When Italy entered the war a great number of Italians returned to join the Italian army. When Greece ordered her armies to mobilize many Greeks returned to their native country; and finally the Roumanians left to join their own armies.

Just at present the foreign legion with its 800 Americans is holding a quiet section of the French front, where the first line trenches run in front of a beautiful, ancient, historic castle, which German gunfire has reduced to a mere heap of ruins. The beautiful grounds are as beautiful as ever. The regiment has well earned the comparative rest it finds there and is recuperating its forces. Newcomers do not like the comparative inaction of the position where the legion is stationed, though most people would find it exciting enough.

Every now and then some one gets caught by a shrapnel bullet or a fragment of shell. Every now and then the legion is called on to repel an attack by the Germans and some more of them get killed or are badly wounded; but for the real sensations of the war as they found them at the Champagne front or as they are to be found in Picardy, on the Somme, they know nothing at present.

The French are enthusiastic over the Americans in the legion. They are reckoned among the best fighters of all, being cool under fire, resourceful and clever, besides being exceedingly brave and fighting to the death when in a tight corner.

CIVIC RECREATION BUILDING

In the office of the Glendale Garden society lies an invitation to the president to attend a certain delightful event to be held—now here is the point; read it carefully—"in the Convention Hall of the Civic Recreation Building of Santa Barbara." Of course the kind invitation could not be accepted, owing to lack of the wherewithal for traveling expenses; but that is neither here nor there. The important point lies in the phrase, civic recreation building. Repeat that phrase over in your mind, then say it aloud. Civic recreation building. Does it arouse any mental image? Does it convey any thought to you? No? Well, then, repeat it again, civic recreation building. A great convention to be held in the convention hall of the civic recreation building of—Glendale I beg pardon. I mean, not Glendale; that was a mistake; I should have said Santa Barbara. A thousand, perhaps two thousand people from everywhere will spend three days in Santa Barbara because it has a civic recreation building. Santa Barbara is being tremendously advertised because it has a civic recreation building. Well, what is that? Why, nothing, of course. That affects Santa Barbara only. What would Glendale want with a civic recreation building? Absurd, the whole thing. Really, downright foolish of Santa Barbara to have a civic recreation building.

The Kalem company that is working on the production of "The Girl from 'Frisco" is busy in the San Fernando valley, near Roscoe, where a large Mexican village has been built for the purpose of affording a background for the seventeenth episode of this popular film drama. The seventeenth episode is concerned with Mexican border raiders. It is styled "The Border Wolves." During the production the other day of part of the film, Hart Hoxie, a daring rider, supposed to be thrown from his horse when wounded, was thrown in such a way that his horse stepped on his right hand and stripped off the nails of two of his fingers. The wound, though painful, is getting along fairly well.

Her many friends here will be glad to know that she is very much pleased with her work with the Santa Barbara Abstract company.

Mr. and Mrs. Greely Koits, 318 South Louise street, will move with their family this week to Los Angeles. Mr. Koits, who is the head of the Koits Ice company of Los Angeles, is desirous of being in closer touch with his business and as his son, Robert, is attending the University of Southern California it will be more convenient for the family to reside in Los Angeles.

Mrs. W. M. Crawford, 916 South Central avenue, acted as leader of a party of boys and girls, Tuesday, on a trip to Dead Horse canyon, in the Verdugo hills. The party left Glendale by street car and went to the end of the line on Brand boulevard and then went directly into the hills. Dead Horse canyon was reached after a time and the old silver mine that used to be worked there was reached and examined. The old shaft is still in existence and the drift whence the ore was taken is visible. The party ate their lunch in the canyon beside a stream of delightfully cool, pure water. Flowers and birds were observed and ferns gathered, and after a delightful time the party returned toward the close of the afternoon. Those present were: Mrs. W. M. Crawford, Catherine Hendricks, Margaret Crawford, Dorothy Brown, Gladys Fannet, Zelma Lindley, Frances Smith, Charleston White, Valentine Hollingsworth, Doris Smith, Forrest Jordan and McHenry Holley.

CIVIC CENTER MEETING

The movement has acquired some momentum since it was first broached in the Glendale Evening News and there is every prospect that there will be a well-attended gathering. The Glendale school board is invited to be present. All those interested are also invited to be present.

"If a man does not provide for his children, if he does not provide for all those dependent upon him, and if he has not that vision of conditions to come and that care for the days that have not yet dawned which we sum up in the whole idea of thrift and saving, then he has not opened his eyes to any adequate conception of human life. We are in this world to provide, not for ourselves, but for others, and that is the basis of economy."

NARROW ESCAPE

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Farnham of 528 South Jackson street and Mrs. Warren Roberts of 707 West Seventh street figured in an automobile accident Tuesday from which they luckily escaped with very minor injuries and little damage to the car.

Mr. Farnham was driving his new Buick Six along the Santa Anita road near Sierra Madre when he met a woman driving a Dodge car. The cars were in plain sight of each other for 500 feet or more, but the woman in the Dodge concluded to turn around and had backed up and stopped her car. Just as Mr. Farnham was nearly alongside of her she started her car. To avoid a collision Mr. Farnham turned and drove up a three foot embankment into a pile of rocks. The Dodge struck the rear of the Buick, taking off the rear fender, while the contact with the boulders caused some damage to the front of the car.

FROM NEW YORK STATE*LOUIS SIPPLE, CHICKEN EXPERT, COMES TO SETTLE IN GLENDALE

Louis Sipple and his family arrived in Glendale Friday from New York state, where he has been ranching for a long number of years. Like all intelligent Americans, Mr. Sipple long ago learned of and made himself acquainted with the advantages of life in California but the opportunity to come out here did not occur until a year and a half ago. At that time Mr. Sipple came to Glendale and purchased an acre and a half of ground with a house at 239 East Fifth street. Circumstances, however, prevented him from coming here to settle until now. He was compelled to go back to New York state to settle up some of his affairs there, and anxious as he was to come to Glendale he did not get out until now.

"I came to the conclusion," said Mr. Sipple, "that Glendale was a nice place in which to live and the climate was agreeable, and I determined to secure a place anyway even if I had to go back east and settle up my affairs. I have six lots on Fifth street and it is an ideal place for a chicken ranch. I believe there is room for one more in Glendale. All my life I have been a chicken man and understand the business. I shall start in slow and make experiments with various breeds until I find the kind that is best suited to this place. I have generally dealt in White Leghorns and I notice that quite a number of people here believe in them.

"I live in Sullivan county, New York, of which the county seat is Roscoe. Where I lived was a table-land 2500 feet above the level of the sea. Just before I left the weather was fine and beautiful; cold at nights as might be expected in a climate at that elevation. Further north from us there had already been snow. Last year we had four feet of snow during the winter, on the level. Then the spring came in with heavy rains and crops were very poor. Every night just before I left there were heavy frosts at night.

"We enjoyed the journey out to this place very much. The country along the route looked very beautiful and prosperous. We left New York in a through car and were landed in Los Angeles intact after a journey which began in New York on Monday and ended here Friday. It was a remarkably quick trip.

"California has not the bustle and business that one finds in the cities of the East, but it has what is better in my opinion, a steady, growing prosperity. Much money is being made and distributed in the East in these days of war orders; but it will come to an end some time before long and will be succeeded by years of economic depression. The moment the war is over the competition between the different countries of the world will begin and there will be a vast contrast between the condition of the East of this country then from that which it exhibits at present.

"On the other hand I am glad to throw my lot in with the Pacific coast because there has been no unnatural boom here and the growth is and will continue to be natural even if it also be a little slow. Even with that taken into consideration I notice that Glendale has developed quite a little since I was last here and that it is still continuing its growth."

FROM FAR JAPAN

One of the most interesting students in Glendale Union high school, who entered Monday, November 6, is Miss Frances Gauntlett, who comes from far Japan to perfect herself in certain forms of education and generally to acquire something of the American spirit. Miss Gauntlett is the daughter of Prof. Edward Gauntlett, an Englishman, born in Wales. He is a professor in the Tokyo Commercial college, where he teaches shorthand and typewriting.

Prof. Gauntlett is quite a genius. He is a man of great versatility. His system of Japanese shorthand has attracted much attention and is in use throughout a great part of the empire. He has also compiled a system of English penmanship which is in use throughout the schools of Japan, where they are eager to acquire western methods.

Miss Gauntlett is a Japanese lady of high birth, and is distinguished for her learning. She has a competent knowledge of the English language, both from a literary and a conversational point of view. When Mrs. Root, wife of Prof. Root of the Glendale high school, was in Japan as a missionary, Mrs. Gauntlett used to act as her interpreter when she would deliver addresses to her mission audiences.

Miss Frances Gauntlett, the daughter of these two remarkable people, is a young lady of pleasing personality and considerable acquirements. It would be difficult to affix her nationality at first sight. She looks something like a Spanish girl of good birth. She was sent by her father to England, where she received a first-class education; but Prof. Gauntlett thought that she would gain many advantages by getting also an American education. Consequently she has come to reside with her mother's friend, Mrs. Root, and to study sketching and art generally and also the Gregg system of shorthand, as she already knows the Pitman system.

VOICE ONLY THE GOOD

The biggest demonstration one can make is to keep one's mouth shut. My companion who was a man of few words often said, "Never say anything about a person unless you say something good."

Keep still. When trouble is brewing, keep still. When slander is getting on its legs, keep still. One thing surely is true, the one who lends himself to tattling, idle talk or groundless rumor, is not a happy home maker, a good wholesome parent or a helpful friend.

When your feelings are hurt, keep still. Keep still till you recover from your excitement at any rate. Things look differently through an unadjusted eye.

Keep still till you can speak calmly, and then you may not need to speak. Silence is the most massive thing conceivable sometimes. It is strength in its very grandeur.

If I knew that a word of mine, A word not kind and true, Might leave its trace On a loved one's face, I'd never speak harshly. Would you?

If I knew the light of a smile Might linger the whole day through And lighter some heart With a heavier part, I wouldn't withhold it. Would you?

—ELLA W. RICHARDSON.

EFFICIENCY TESTS

In a series of interesting experiments at the University of California a large number of school pupils, divided into squads of eight, were put to many tests designed to show observation, memory, speed and accuracy. For instance, sets of ten nonsense syllables were exhibited for one minute, and the pupils were required to write as many as they remembered. They were given columns of figures to add, multiply and cancel. A maze was submitted with instructions to draw a line down the middle of the pathway with care not to touch either of the black side lines, nor to cut off corners, nor to run out of the pathway.

Tabulations made of the tests at different hours of the school day showed that efficiency increases gradually in the morning, reaches a high point before noon, but after luncheon there is a decided let-down, efficiency increasing, however, between three and four.

THE HYDRO-SKI

The most recent invention for walking on water had an official trial short time ago on a lake in the Bois de Boulogne, Paris, in the presence of French officials and a large assemblage of the general public.

It is the invention of Dr. Galansino who calls it the "hydro-ski-Risso." This apparatus, which weighs only seventeen pounds, is composed of two floats joined in front by articulated steel rods and a wheel by cranks operating a paddle wheel.

The man slips his feet into sockets upon the floats, much as a skier puts on his skis, and a slight alternating movement of the knees and ankles makes the paddle wheel turn and sends the strange apparatus skimming over the water.

The hydro-ski-Risso will support a weight of 440 pounds. It can be taken apart and folded up, or unfolded and put together in three minutes. A man fully equipped can walk across a river at a speed of anywhere from three to seven miles an hour, according to the strength of his muscles.

TOO LITERAL

A teacher, having had a hard time to get the class to understand what an island is, took a basin filled with water and put a large lump of putty in the water, and told the class that that was an island. The next day she asked how many remembered what an island is. Mary shook her hand vigorously. "Well, Mary," said the teacher. Mary answered, "A basin of water with a lump of putty in the middle."

A TAME SEA LION

At Avalon, Cal., one of the most interesting examples of tame wild animals is to be seen in the shape of a sea lion, which must weigh a quarter of a ton, if not more. This great creature I have seen on the main street of Avalon, surrounded by tourists, who were snapping kodaks at it and viewing the marine giant with open-eyed wonder.

The sea lion, which the fishermen call "Ben," is a wild animal that is the head of a rookery that has for years held ground at a point of rocks on the south end of the island. Every day these sea lions start out on a fishing trip and follow the island up the coast; but four or five of the largest, led by Ben, frequent the bay of Avalon and give daily exhibitions that amaze the many tourists who visit it. To see a man step down onto a float and shout, "Ben!" at the top of his voice, excites laughter and wonder. But in a few moments a big head appears, perhaps fifty feet from shore, then a huge animal, the size of a cow, comes up to the float and crawls up on it, or the beach, as the case may be. In summer there are too many people around and Ben will not crawl up into the street, but he will come out on the float or beach and take an albacore from the man's hand—really a remarkable exhibition. I saw Ben on one occasion come up the beach and follow the man to the sea wall, then up a short narrow staircase used by bathers; then he was lured into the very street, where he stood, head in air, nose up, with a sleepy expression. When he received his fish he turned and waddled back to the water, like a huge caterpillar.—C. F. Holder, in the September St. Nicholas.

NEW HOMES FOR RUSSIANS

A Russian colonizing commission has been traveling through South America, for the purpose of studying the country, with a view to the establishment there, after the present war, of Russian families left homeless in the western part of Russia. Most of these families are to be domiciled in Brazil and Argentina. A direct steamship service will be established between Riga, Russia and South American ports.

It is further stated that the immigrants will not be undesirable people but strong and healthy families, accustomed to farm life; most of them provided with money enough to engage in agricultural pursuits in their new homes.

It is said that Russia could import from Brazil large quantities of coffee and minerals, which she used to import through other countries. It is pointed out that once direct steamship service is established between Riga and South America, the steamships can take immigrants to America and return to Russia loaded with Brazilian products.

LONG STREET CAR RIDES

D. J. McGrath, research assistant of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, has made a study of the length of rides obtainable in the different American cities on street railways. When one glances at the maps which have been compiled, and notes that rides of eight and ten miles are available for a single fare in practically all of the cities covered, and that in some cases more than fifteen miles may be ridden by transferring through the center of the city, a delightful evening was spent.

Under the five cent fare system, the passenger riding ten miles, or more, does so at the rate of less than 0.5 cent per mile. The often quoted low fares of European cities cannot begin to compare with that rate. In American cities only a small proportion of the passengers ride these long distances, and the loss involved is more or less made up by the profit upon the short rides.

FAMILY ON A MOTORCYCLE

A man living in Illinois, who wished to take his family on a vacation to his former home in Kentucky made use of his motorcycle for the purpose, accomplishing the journey of 512 miles in three days, at a cost for repairs and supplies for the machine of $3.97. His family consisted of himself, his wife and four children.

To the motorcycle was attached one of the usual side cars with a seat made large enough to accommodate two children. The wife sat on another seat in the side car and held in her lap the youngest child. A seat was fixed in the front end of the side car for the oldest child, while the father sat in the rider's seat.

BERMUDA BARS AUTOS

The Island of Bermuda still maintains its unique stand against the introduction of the automobile on its roads and highways. It is said that a large majority of the people are opposed to having automobiles travel on the roads of the island, for the reason that thousands of tourists go there annually and its beautiful drives, which have offered some of the finest highways for horseback riding and carriages would be less desirable for such purposes.

A bill to provide a restricted motor bus service for the island, urged by some of the people, was defeated some time ago.

SUNLAND

Mrs. A. T. Blumfield was a visitor in Los Angeles Monday.

B. F. Mears is spending a few days in Los Angeles this week.

Mrs. W. H. Warfield and Charles Warfield of Los Angeles and Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Greninger of Duarte were callers Sunday at the home of Albert Shelly.

Mrs. Z. Stancill and daughter, Orpha, returned Sunday from a week's vacation spent at Riverside.

Mr. Strader and little daughter Carrie visited at the home of Alfred Adams, Jr., Sunday.

Mr. Eagler moved his family to their home in Santa Monica Tuesday and Fred Herron and son in law Mr. Comstock took possession of the stand under the Oaks. Mr. Herron's family will live in Mrs. L. Johnson's house.

Robert Rowley was home for the week end from Pasadena where he is a student at college.

Lyman Maxwell of Los Angeles, was visiting friends in Sunland over Sunday.

Alfred Adams, Sr., has a new Ford car which Mrs. Adams is learning to run.

HALLOWEEN FESTIVITIES

The Sunland Christian Endeavor society was pleasantly entertained by the Tujunga society at Bolton hall Friday evening. A delightful time was spent in games. Refreshments were served.

The Blue Bird club entertained the G. H. N. club in Rowley's hall Saturday evening. The hall was decorated in Blue birds, jack o' lanterns and straw. The girls wore aprons and caps and the boys overalls. The blue birds served ginger snaps, doughnuts, cocoa and apples.

The Truth Seekers class of the Baptist Sunday school entertained the class of Rev. Wester at the home of George Huse on Summit avenue with a masquerade. The rooms were decorated with orange and black. Black cats were plentiful. The young people were dressed in fancy costumes. Everything was represented from the fairy to the Indian. After a grand march they unmasked and as the costumes were very deceiving much merriment was caused in the discovery of different ones. All entertained heartily in the Hallowe'en spirit of games and a delightful evening was spent.

We want to give the boys a word of praise for their consideration in playing their Hallowe'en pranks. So far we have not heard of any damage to property such as tipping over buildings and such sports as have heretofore been engaged in. A few tick tacks, a knock or two on the doors with jack o' lanterns, displayed was the extent of their frolic.

Perhaps you think there was no excitement in Sunland last Saturday morning when the telephone announced that C. B. Johnson had killed the bear. About two weeks ago Mr. Johnson discovered bear tracks on his ranch and tracked it quite a distance up the mountain. Also discovered the place in his grape vineyard where it had camped. With the true spirit of a hunter Mr. Johnson hastened to Los Angeles and purchased a bear trap, which he set in the edge of his vineyard about three miles northeast of Sunland. The next morning he found the trap missing and traced it about a half mile up the mountain where the bear had dragged the big log to which the trap was fastened. Mr. Johnson not thinking he could take Mr. Bruin alive fired a fatal shot, which ended the wanderings of what is thought to have been the only silver tipped grizzly bear in California, as the species was supposed to have been extinct. As everybody wanted to see the bear Mr. Johnson decided to bring it to the park in Sunland for exhibit. It was loaded into Mr. Hartranft's car and started for Sunland by the way of Tujunga. Pictures were taken of it by John McVine and hurriedly finished by Mr. Lamson and were on sale in the afternoon at 35 cents each. The bear weighed 254 pounds and Frank Wiggins, president of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce stated that if it had been taken alive it would have been worth $1000. It was in the park all day and viewed by crowds from the nearby cities until dark. Mr. Johnson took it to Los Angeles Monday and is having it mounted at a leading taxidermist's. What will be the final disposition of it is not known as he has had offers from the Chamber of Commerce in Los Angeles and from the museum at Berkeley and other places, but Mrs. Johnson thinks the fur would make a beautiful rug.

F. B. Means is crippled quite badly, the result of a horse stepping on his foot.

Mrs. C. B. Johnson and children are spending the week in Sunland with her sister, Mrs. Nance and her aunt, Mrs. Huse while they are having their house plastered. Mr. Johnson has a very picturesquely site for his new home in the big Tujunga canyon.

The commercial secretaries of Los Angeles, Orange, Riverside and San Bernardino met at Long Beach, Saturday, October 28, with an attendance of about fifty.

CHINESE PHONE EXCHANGE

No other telephone exchange may be found like the Chinatown branch at San Francisco. It is a strange mixture of the Orient and the Occident. Seen from the street, it is like a bit of old Peking set down in a modern city, and its curving roof lines seem oddly out of place between the conventional brick buildings that adjoin it. It is a bit of richly carved and highly colored architecture—a picture from a fan.

The visitor who enters is courteously received by a celestial in native garb; but a few moments of conversation reveal that he is an up-to-date business man—quite American in everything but his race and costume. It is Mr. Loo Kum Shu, manager of the Chinatown exchange, an electrical expert and efficient head of a staff of fourteen operators. The business done by this central includes all the city and out-of-town calls between the Chinese. There are about a thousand telephones in the Chinese quarter, and calls up to eight thousand in number are handled every day by the dainty little oriental girls, who sit at their work clad in the costume of their own people. These girls are exceptionally well educated; all of them were taught in the San Francisco public schools, and, in addition to a perfect knowledge of our language, they have a command of the different Chinese dialects that are spoken in the quarter. As the oriental subscriber does not call by number, these girls must remember the name and number of all subscribers, a feat of memory which would baffle most American "centrals."—E. L. Edholm in the October St. Nicholas.
